Online training: Monitoring & Evaluation of development projects and programs

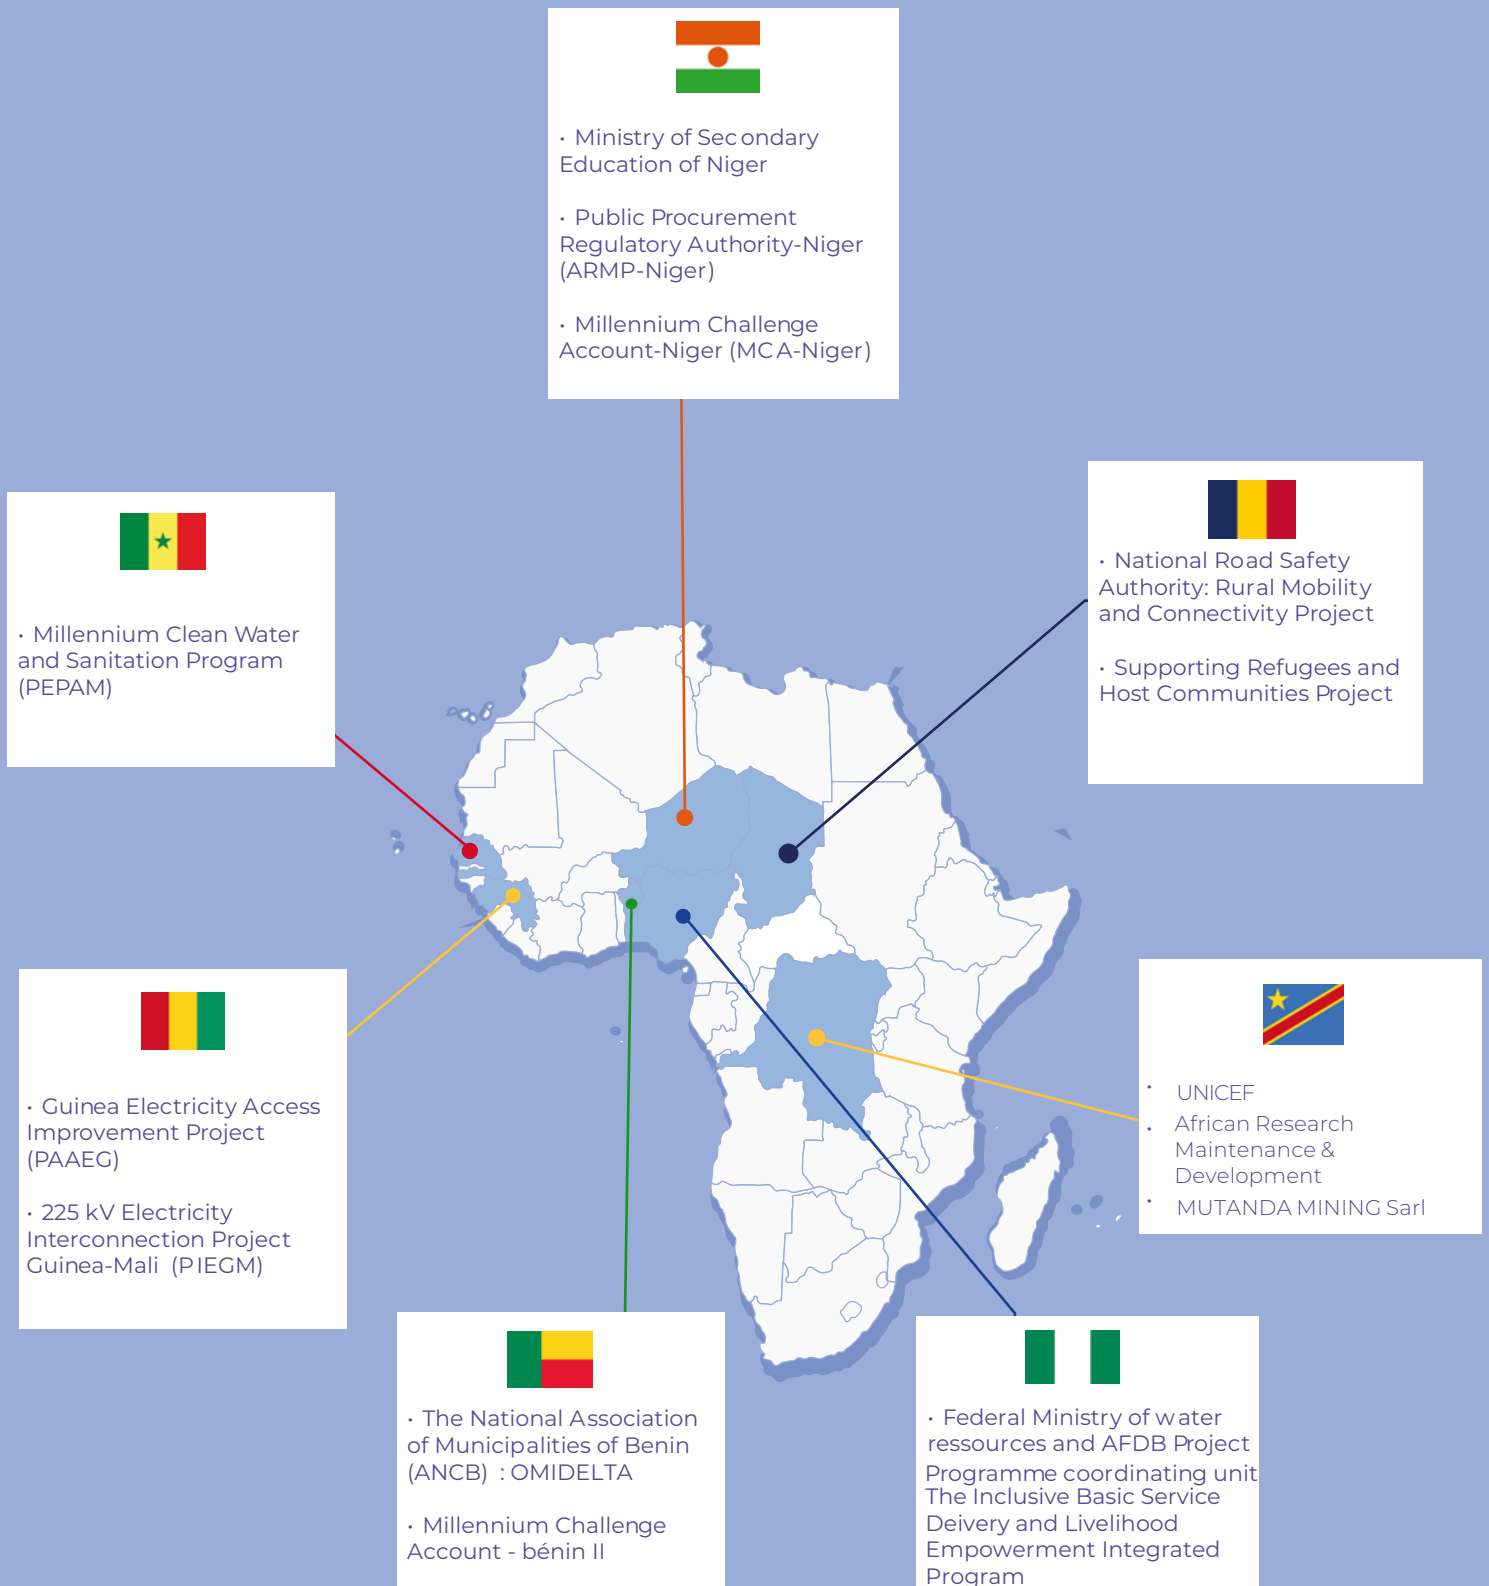

CODEV is an institution that primarily focuses on the expectations of its participants. I received thorough support from the moment I enrolled in my training and even after it was completed.

This online training was a first for me. Despite my initial concerns, the trainers were able to reassure me through the course content, their availability, their attentiveness, and the sharing of their experiences. Distance learning is, therefore, a good compromise that I highly recommend.
